

concept no. 01

A beautiful encapsulations of one earth's most valuable creations. Learning to adapt is the way that the flower survives. Humans can benefit from the wide tasks that flowers perform. Flowers aren't conscious, they are designed to have one function and as the years pass, thanks to nature; Flowers are diverse, beautiful, self sufficient and many more things, but to humans, they will always be symbols of love and emotion.